The nature of work has undergone major changes over the last few years. Those changes are reflected in office environments. New ways of living and collaborating have especially affected the way workplaces are designed and furnished.

The traditional individual workstation has become one of many. The contemporary office world is open: modifiable arrangements are more and more essential for meeting today's requirements of constant communication, well-being and flexibility in thinking, acting and collaborating.

These times perfectly suit USM. Modularity, versatility and quality have always been associated with USM: our wide range of modular elements, of adaptable office furniture, helps you design a workspace that conforms exactly to your coworkers' individual needs and the overall demands of your company – creating a setting where you, your employees and teams feel comfortable and empowered to tap their full creative potential.

COLLAB- ORATION

“Collaboration, both face-to-face and virtual, is required more than ever before. Collaboration is critical to innovation (many minds working toward creative solutions), efficiency (enhanced decision-making) and quality (more knowledge-sharing, leading to better results).”

Anika Ellison Savage, “Workplace Strategy: What It Is and Why You Should Care,”
in: Journal of Corporate Real Estate, Vol. 7.

The collaborative workspace is open, versatile and adjustable to situational needs – characteristics that must also apply to modern-day office furnishings. At USM we think and work just as flexibly, creating solutions that give you the scope to build your own customized office.

A photograph of a modern co-working space. In the foreground, a man wearing a green jacket and a flat cap is seated at a long, bright yellow table, working on a laptop. The table is surrounded by black chairs with orange seats. To the left, a bicycle is mounted on a wall. The background features a large glass wall that looks out onto another area with a blue counter and various items. The ceiling has exposed pipes and several large, spherical pendant lights. The floor is made of polished concrete. The overall atmosphere is bright and collaborative.

FOCUS

“For quick transitions from one mode of working (collaborative) to another (heads-down), ‘thinking spaces’ are needed for periods of concentration. A corporate facility must provide the right mix of these spaces”

Anika Elison Savage, “Workplace Strategy: What It Is and Why You Should Care,”
in: Journal of Corporate Real Estate, Vol. 7.

Privacy, areas of retreat, and room for concentrated work are important in the contemporary open-concept office. USM Privacy Panels

USM Privacy Panels are a flexible and extendable modular system made up of individual panel units. Each panel unit consists of two layers of molded polyester fabric with a tubular crossbeam. They can be used in a free-standing version or mounted on tables to divide up the work space, ensure privacy and absorb unwanted noise.

The panels are available in two sizes, a smaller version measuring 250 × 350 mm and a larger version measuring 750 × 350 mm. These dimensions are chosen to match those of USM Haller storage and desks. All measurements refer to the distance between axes.
